

FAST FACTS

What is a CASA volunteer?

CASA stands for Court-Appointed Special Advocates. Dallas CASA is a non-profit organization of volunteers who serve as voices for abused and neglected children. The courts appoint CASA volunteers to gather information and make recommendations to help judges decide what is best for each child.

What do children gain from having a CASA volunteer?

CASA volunteers are a source of hope and support for child victims as they wait for the courts to decide where they may safely live. Advocates help children access the services they need to heal from their abuse, and the information and recommendations CASA volunteers provide help to expedite the court process and provide better outcomes for children under the court's protection. For many abused children, CASA is the only constant during a frightening, uncertain time. A CASA volunteer can make an immediate and critical impact on the life of a child.

Are CASA volunteers trained and supervised?

CASA volunteers undergo 30 hours of initial training and 12 hours of continuing education each year. Each volunteer advocate works with a CASA staff supervisor who provides guidance throughout the court process.

Are volunteers really important to the court and child welfare process?

Yes. Judges depend on CASA volunteers to help keep them better informed about each child's case. They want CASA volunteers on every case in their courts, but currently, Dallas CASA is only able to serve three out of five of the abused children in need of CASA voices in court. There is a child waiting for your help.

What kind of person is a CASA volunteer?

Our volunteers come from all walks of life, and most are employed full-time. Volunteers must be 21 or older, undergo a background check and take part in a personal interview. Volunteer advocates are patient, open-minded people with good communication skills, a history of following through on commitments and a willingness to accept guidance. Above all, they care about children.

How much time does it take to be a CASA volunteer?

It will generally range from five to twenty hours per month. Most of this time can be spent in evenings or on weekends, but there are approximately eight to ten court hearings per year, as well as phone calls and occasional meetings during working hours. To share the volunteer responsibilities, some volunteers partner with a friend, a spouse or other relative who also is a volunteer advocate.
